7 It was declared in Ezra v Secy of State (1902) 30 Cal at pp 77 and 80 that there was no definition of a "public purpose" in the Act, nor any limitation regarding what was likely to prove useful to the public. For obvious reasons both matters are left to the absolute discretion of the Govt.

In this case the land in question is sought to be acquired for the formation of a Tulasi garden to the Temple at Bhadravathi, which is a Mutt institution. The garden is likely to be useful to the public who visit the temple and part of the compensation is going to be met out of the public revenues. Hence, there appears to be no legal difficulty in sanctioning the proposed acquisition.
